Glenn A. Santoro, a lawyer and certified public accountant, focuses his practice in the areas of public finance, mergers and acquisitions, and general corporate matters. He combines his accounting background and nearly three decades of legal experience to assist clients with complex financial and business transactions. He is a member of our firm's Business Transactions group.

Public Finance

Glenn assists municipalities and government agencies with financings related to public projects, particularly in the area of water pollution control. He has represented various municipalities in the drafting and negotiation of documentation for the privatization of municipal wastewater treatment systems. Glenn consummated a transaction involving the formation of a regional water pollution control authority and its acquisition of wastewater system assets, which was financed by the issuance of tax-exempt revenue bonds. He represents municipalities in connection with the issuance of tax-exempt obligations, and he is responsible for the firm's representation of all municipal borrowers in State of Connecticut Clean Water Fund and Drinking Water State Revolving Fund financings.

Mergers + Acquisitions

Glenn handles a variety of merger and acquisition transactions for public and private clients, such as governmental entities and manufacturers.

General Corporate Services

In addition to his transactional practice, Glenn regularly represents corporate clients on matters of governance, shareholder relations, and general contracting issues.

Prior to joining Robinson+Cole, Glenn was an auditor with Coopers & Lybrand, now known as PwC.
