Hartford — 860.275.8286

Hunter Mason guides clients in navigating contracts for industrial, healthcare, residential, hospitality, and retail projects. Drawing on his experience with large-scale data center development, he drafts and negotiates construction, design, consulting, and other agreements with a practical understanding of complex project demands. He advises clients on contract strategy, negotiation, execution, and performance.

Hunter's prior contracts management and consulting roles supported complex, mission-critical developments, and shaped his practical approach to client service. In those roles, he negotiated and managed project agreements and collaborated with legal, finance, insurance, and technical teams on risk management, compliance, dispute resolution, and project delivery. He also managed contracts for a federal contractor, negotiating commercial agreements and supporting compliance with federal acquisition regulations.
