Jamie L. Edmonson has more than two decades of experience representing public and non-public debtor corporations, secured and unsecured creditors, official committees, trustees, and asset purchasers in bankruptcy and restructuring matters.

Her practice is focused on guiding clients through commercial bankruptcy cases, restructurings, creditors' rights issues, insolvencies, and liquidations, in which she represents a wide range of clients, including debtors, creditor and equity statutory committees, lenders, asset purchasers, landlords, and lessees. In addition to her bankruptcy work, Jamie's versatile skill set also includes finance, real estate, energy, and corporate law. She is a member of our Bankruptcy + Reorganizations group and is resident in our firm's Wilmington, Delaware office. She also spends significant time in our firm's Los Angeles office.

Jamie regularly serves as Delaware and lead counsel in large Chapter 11 filings and has extensive experience in all aspects of the Chapter 11 restructuring process involving many industries, which include the information technology, retail, food, energy, construction, real estate, telecommunications, and manufacturing sectors.

Jamie has been named to The Best Lawyers in America 2025 and is a member of the Global Network of Women Committee for the Turnaround Management Association. She is a regular speaker and author on topics on bankruptcy and restructuring. Her pro bono work includes serving as a judge for the National Appellate Advocacy Competition for the American Bar Association and the Annual Duberstein Bankruptcy Moot Court Competition, as well as joining efforts with the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights to serve as a nonpartisan poll monitor on Election Day 2018, 2020, and 2022.

Before joining Robinson+Cole, Jamie was the managing partner of the Wilmington office for an Am Law 100 firm. She also utilized her finance background as a managing director with a nationally renowned financial advisory firm for several years.
