Boston — 617.557.5947

Jeremy Korn focuses on the intellectual property and technology aspects of complex business transactions, including mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures and strategic alliances, collaboration agreements, IP and data licenses, and other strategic commercial arrangements. Jeremy aids clients in drafting and negotiating key deal documents, or the IP provisions therein, for these arrangements, including purchase agreements, transition services agreements, credit and security agreements, offering memoranda, licenses and sublicenses, research and development agreements, supply agreements, and coexistence agreements.

He also assists with clients' daily commercial contracting needs, including sales agreements and purchase contracts, distribution agreements, terms and conditions, service and consulting agreements, sales representative agreements, and nondisclosure agreements. Jeremy also represents clients licensing data and software by advising on and negotiating data licenses, software licenses, cloud services and software as a service (SaaS) agreements.

Jeremy has performed due diligence in the areas of technology, intellectual property, information technology, data privacy and cybersecurity for dozens of transactions spanning various industries. He also offers pro bono counsel to startups, focusing on technology or intellectual property issues.

Prior to joining our firm, Jeremy interned at a large, public software company, helping to conduct quarterly retrospective analyses of high-value contracts, supporting the contract negotiation processes, and performing legal research, drafting memos on data privacy laws and emerging AI frameworks.
