Providence — 401.709.3335

William M. Daley focuses his practice on insurance coverage litigation and business litigation.

Insurance Litigation

Max is a member of our firm's Insurance + Reinsurance group. He handles a range of insurance coverage and claims litigation, including matters involving property, liability, life, health, disability, professional liability matters and more.

Business Litigation

As a member of our firm's Business Litigation group, Max assists clients facing a range of commercial disputes, including claims of breach of contract; business torts such as fraud, misrepresentation, conversion, and interference with contract; unfair and deceptive trade practices; RICO violations; securities and antitrust violations; and intellectual property claims.

Max is experienced at working to protect the interests of businesses. He has guided a client through the successful launch of a business, by helping the client through multi-state regulatory compliance issues and advising the client on a business model. After a former employee at a Fortune 500 company launched a derogatory web site aimed at harming the company's image, he worked on the company's behalf to shut down the site.

Prior to joining Robinson+Cole, Max worked as a judicial law clerk in the Rhode Island Supreme Court Law Clerk Department, where he assisted two Rhode Island Superior Court Justices.

While in law school, he also served as a judicial intern to the Honorable Mary M. Lisi of the United States District Court for the District of Rhode Island.
